Dressing for Church.

Has anybody heard the bell?
You have—dear me! I know full well
I'll never dress in time,
For mercy's sake, come help me Luce,
I'll make my toilet very spruce,—
The silk is quite sublime!

Here, lace this gaiter for me—do:
A hold you say? plague take the shoe!
Please, Luce, try and hide it,
Just think, it's Sunday, and my soul,
I cannot wear it with a hole!
The men will surely spy it.

They're always peeping at our feet,
[Tho' to be sure, they needn't peep,
The way we hold our dresses.]
I'll disappoint them, though, to-day,
And cross myself? pray did you say?
Don't laugh at my mistresses!

Now, Luce, pray fix my waterfall,
Do you think it large? ain't it too small?
What bother those things give!
My rats and mice, do they set straight?
Please hurry Luce, I know I'm late,
There's Eddie, as I live!

How splendidly the silk will rustle!
[Please hand my self-adjusting bustle,
My corset and my hoop.]
There, now, I'll take five skirts or six
Do hurry, Luce, and help fix;
You know I cannot stoop!

How shall I say my prayers to-day,
As if girls went to church to pray?
How can you be so foolish?
Here, damp this ribbon in cologne;
What for? to paint, you silly one;
Now, Luce, don't be mulish.

Now then, my hat, how he abhors
This thing, it's big as all out doors,
The frightful sugar-scoop!
Thank Heaven, my cloak is handsome,
It cost enough to be, I know,
Straighten this horrid hoop.

My handkerchief and gloves you'll find
Just in that drawer. Luce, are you blind?
Does my dress trail?
It's all the fashion now you know;
Pray, does the paint and powder show
Through my loose veil?

Thank you, my dear, I believe I'm dressed!
The saints be praised, the day of rest.
Comes only once in seven,
For if on all the other six,
This trouble I should have to fix,
I'd never get to Heaven!

From the New York Evening Express.

My Little Story.

It was once my fortune to live for a time in a little French village—a very stupid little French village—with scarce anything to recommend it. To be sure, there was the little village church, with its spire glistening in the sun-shine, and its sweet vesper song and solemn organ tones floating out upon the still evening air. And then there was the chateau on an eminence, a little way out of the village, looking grand, certainly, but a little gloomy, too. It was rather suggestive of the ancient noblesse, and of the revolution, that huge, bloodstained juggernaut that crushed out the noblesse and all their belongings. But my chateau in the village I write of, had somehow escaped—I think it must have been owing to the stupidity of the villagers, for they were a stupid set—and I lived among them were Baptiste, the village shoemaker, and Yolande, his wife.

Baptiste was rather below the middle height, with very crooked legs, and the reddest nose I ever saw; indeed, altogether the most unprepossessing and unpoetic person one could imagine—unless that other was his wife. She was!

But no! I will not thus early take shelter in that refuge of the weak, exclamation, but will boldly attempt a description of her. She was short and square-built, like a Dutch lugger, lame, one leg being shorter than the other. She had altogether an unfinished appearance, as though she had started in life with the intention of being a tall, fine looking woman, but nature had in a sudden and pre-emptory manner laid a heavy hand upon her head, and told her to stop there; and she had stopped; and the effect upon her appearance was not good. In addition to these peculiarities she had another, and more unsightly one; she had lost one eye, evidently in some violent manner, for beyond the patch which she universally wore over the sightless socket, you could trace a cicatrice, as of a wound.

And this unsightly couple are the hero and the heroine of my little story.

But here we must go back to the chateau, always lonely and deserted, for Monsieur lived in Paris. He was attached to the Court of the Emperor, and cared nothing for his old country house so far from the capital. He had inherited it from some far-away cousin, a quarter of a century before I began to tell of in my little story. But at that time he was not quite indifferent; he came down occasionally then, to view his dominion, and his broad and expansive gaze had taken in all the pretty village maidens—not least among whom was Yolande.

Yolande was just then budding into womanhood—a fair, sweet-looking creature, half child, half woman; with soft brown eyes, and a shower of wavy, brown hair, with a glint of gold through it. She was just a simple, untalented little peasant, who knew nothing but to work on the little cottage and garden of her aunt, with whom she lived—her father and mother being dead—and in the season, to work with the other lads and lasses in the village, to gather in the grapes that grow on the sunny hill-side.

And there Baptiste worked, too, then a fair-haired boy, who always dandled with Yolande and helped her carry her bundle of faggots down the hill, when they wended home in the light of the setting sun.

And Monsieur cast his eyes upon Yolande; but it was an evil eye for her, though poor child. Her innocence and ignorance were her two good guardians, for when Monsieur met her in the fields, and in the woods, where she went upon her daily toil, and praised her eyes and gold-brown hair, and told her of the wonders and beauties of grand Paris, she listened, not to the speaker, but to the theme; and when he, mistaking her silence and rapt attention for pleasure in his presence, lured upon her, as only a man utterly profligate can lure upon a pure woman, and would have taken her in his arms, she fairly ran away from him, and never stopped till she found herself safe at home. There crossing herself, she prayed to her patron saint to keep her from the presence of the evil spirit she thought must surely have taken the shape of Monsieur, to tempt her to—she scarce knew what.

Some womanly instinct led Yolande to keep to herself what had occurred, but she was also careful to keep out of Monsieur's way. It was not so easy to do the latter, however, for Monsieur, totally at a loss to understand her conduct, followed her about a great deal just then and at last, wearied and annoyed at what he considered to be the affectation of such "canaille," he ordered his chariot to be in readiness every evening, at a certain spot in the wood, and, after waiting many evenings, he was rewarded.

As Yolande, without a suspicion of danger, came singing along, one twilight, she was seized and lifted into the chariot, which went whirling off before she had time to utter a sound, even if uttering many and loud ones could have availed her in that lonely road.

Thus Monsieur took her to Paris, to one of his establishments, and gave her a maid to wait on her, and fine dresses and jewels, and gee gaws; but poor Yolande addressed the maid as mam'selle, and did not value the finery. She did not know the use of it and she feared and hated her goaler.

At first she cried and raved, and prayed for her release, but finding all of no avail, she just sat down and waited for death. Not that she was at all heroic—at all events she did not know it if she was—but she hated Monsieur and loved Baptiste.

At last Monsieur grew tired of bribes, appeals, and threats, and one day after a stormy hour, told her to begone—and she went—started, poor child, in her ignorance and poverty, to find her way back to her village home, never doubting they would be glad to see her.

She found her home at last, after many a weary, foot sore, heart, sore hour, and found they were not glad to see her. A few villagers had seen her whirling away in Monsieur's chariot, and with all their ignorance there was a great deal of human nature about them; and human nature is not charity, but quite a different thing. And their human nature naturally set them to think the worst of Yolande, and they turned their back upon her accordingly—Baptiste among the rest.

Indeed Baptiste was most bitter, for he had suffered most. As for her aunt, she too would have turned the bad girl out of the house instantly, but for the fact that she had felt deeply her loss in the household cares, and was rather glad than otherwise to have her under a cloud, for then she could ill-treat her with impunity.

And it was in this wise: After the gay season Monsieur needed change and rest, and came down to his chateau, to bask in the sweet spring sunshine, and again he saw Yolande. Her months of silent, patient suffering had softened, and chastened her person and bearing, and she was more beautiful than ever. Monsieur's wolfish passion returned again; he watched her comings and goings, and ogled and beset her.

Now it seems that Baptiste kept ever near her, not in the old affectionate way, but rather as a faithful, though a very surly dog—a dog quite as ready to turn and rend her, as her enemies.

One day, or rather evening, for the sun was just sinking, Monsieur met—nay, waylaid Yolande, as before, and again assailed her with his love. She heard him, and out of her young, pure heart she answered him. She pointed out to him all that his past outrage had cost her—the scorn, the cold, dark look; she told him of her love for Baptiste, and of his pitiless shrieking away from her as from a pestilential thing—she prayed him by the memory of any that he had loved, to pity, to spare her.

He heard her through, and he was not her only auditor. Baptiste leaped from the hedge at the roadside, where he had been crouching, and rushed upon him—upon him! his lord, his master! You see, Baptiste was excited, and he forgot that Monsieur was his superior. And Monsieur forgot it too—was forced to remember only to defend himself against the attack of this ferocious boor, and in order to do so, drew his sword, to him justice, not a moment too soon!

Yolande, who throughout the scene, which was enacted in less time than it takes to describe, had entreated, shrieked in vain, at this threw herself between them to protect Baptiste, and received the point of Monsieur's sword in one of her beautiful eyes.

Monsieur departed with more haste than was quite becoming with the dignity of so distinguished a personage; but Baptiste did not fly. He carried his poor, wounded dove to her lowly nest, and there for many weary days and nights, he tended and nursed her; and when, at last, she was able to crawl out into the sunshine, they went to the little village church, and the good cure heard their pitiful story, and married and blessed them.

And so for many years they lived together a lowly, toiling, meager life, but lighted by love.

And who shall say that such love as theirs is not better than beaten gold?

My story is told.

Starvation at Home.

The good people of the Western States have been so often appealed to, and had brought to their knowledge the very deplorable condition of our fellow-brethren in the Southern States, that we fear they do not, as they should, fully understand what is meant when we say there is much destitution in the South; and the oft calls upon them for help has made them careless in their consideration of this very grave matter. The Southwestern Relief Commission has been laboring since October last in this work, and from that time to this has been in frequent correspondence with nearly every part of the States of Georgia and Alabama, and parts of Mississippi and South Carolina. The calls for help have been very frequent and pressing, and to the extent of the ability of the Commission have been responded to. But now the call for bread comes louder and more frequent, and in many instances from sections that have not asked for aid before. Delegations of citizens from the starving districts and letters from those in authority there, received during the last few weeks, have been of such a tenor that we have every authority for saying that unless help, in the shape of food, is sent to those people, and that too at once, very many men, women and children will starve. Words are inadequate to convey to the people of this land of plenty the distressing accounts we are daily in receipt of, and the strongest terms that we can use fall far short of expressing the necessities for prompt relief. The commonest necessities of life are only asked for. Bread, bread, is the cry. The comforts and luxuries which we all enjoy are hardly known to-day in that once blessed with plenty. What more can we say to the people of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois? Is it not enough when we lay at your very door the plea for bread, and that plea made by those of a common tongue and country? Let us not inquire politically or philosophically into the causes of this distressing state of affairs. That it exists, and that the claims of Christianity and common brotherhood demand help at our hands, is enough. The distress existing in the South is not confined to those who have been always what is termed poor, but it exists amongst all classes, those who were once in better circumstances, or independent are included as well as the poor. But it is particularly applicable to the women and little children, they forming very largely the greater portion of the sufferers.

To effectually and certainly reach this destitution now at its very height we can assure all donors that we are prepared to apply directly to these people, any gift that generous hearts may offer. Corn and cured meat is particularly specified, or money to buy it. Will not some of God's generous people arouse themselves and commence in their city district or county, this mission of love? Organize a society, commence subscriptions call upon the people, or in any way your judgments may dictate or humanity demand, act in the work. The commission, composed of the first and most influential citizens of Louisville, is assurance to those not acquainted with the fact to assure a faithful and impartial distribution of supplies sent to us. Already there are over twenty auxiliary societies acting and tributary to this. Arrangements have been made and are in effectual working, for the distribution of all supplies to the South by the railroads and steamboats free of freight. Sacks for contributions of corn to this commission furnished free on application. In order that proper parties may be addressed, all moneys should be directed to the Treasurer, L. L. Warren. All inquiries, applications for sacks and shipments of donations to the agent. Public acknowledgements are made weekly of all donations received, and a list of shipments and donations made by the commission is published monthly.

The Shreveport (La.) South-western, of the 20th, says during the past week the unprecedented cold weather has killed all kinds of vegetation as dead as a door-nail. The gardens which ten days ago looked so thriving, giving promise of early vegetables, are most completely ruined, and will have to be planted over again. The corn crop, of which a large amount had been planted, experienced planters inform us, will have to be planted over again. This will delay the crops two or three weeks—a severe drawback in this vicinity, where a severe drouth generally sets in between the 20th and 30th of May.

Father, did you have another wife besides mother?

"No my boy; what possessed you to ask such a question?"

"Because I saw in the old family Bible, where you married Anno Domini, 1835, and that isn't mother, for her name was Sal Smith."

"I love to look upon a young man. There is a hidden potency concealed within his breast which charms and pains me."

The daughter of a clergyman happening to find the above sentence at the close of her father's manuscript as he had left it in his study, sat down and added:

"Them's my sentiments exactly, papa, excepting the pains."

FARMERS' CLUB.—On Saturday last the Farmers' Club met at their room over Beard's stable at the usual hour, 10 o'clock, and from the good attendance it would seem that considerable interest was felt in the success of the organization. There were five additions made to the Club at the last meeting. The subject for discussion was plowing, and it was ably argued by several of the members. We append a synopsis of the proceedings.

The President, Col. Estill, called the house to order and then proceeded to dispose of the regular business.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

On motion of Mr. Tipton, the following gentlemen were received as members of the Farmers' Club: C. A. Farra, W. D. Young, D. C. Wickliffe and Dr. W. Frazier.

Mr. J. J. Halden, Chairman of the Committee to try the Diltz Plow, submitted the following report, which was received and the Committee discharged.

The Committee to examine and report upon the practical utility of the "Dills riding and plowing attachment," after a thorough test in the field with some three different plows, respectfully submit the following report:

That they are of the opinion that it is a labor saving invention, and that the plowing done with the "attachment" was of a superior character, far exceeding the work done in the ordinary manner.

That there was no perceptible increase in the draft of the plow when working with the attachment, on the contrary, we think that from the great steadiness with which the plow is held, the regularity in the depth of the plowing, the uniformity in the width of the furrow slice, tends to lessen rather than increase the draft.

We believe that any boy who can ride and guide a team can do more plowing in a day than can be done by a man in the ordinary way, and do it better.

While we regard the riding part a success, we are of the opinion that it increases the draft, yet on trial we found that two horses did the work, one of the Committee weighing 190 pounds riding the plow cutting four inches deep, in a field clear of obstructions, and for a man too old or from other causes incompetent to follow the plow, we would regard it as invaluable.

In conclusion, your Committee with great confidence in its practical utility cannot commend it too highly to the farmers of the county.

Hon. GARRETT DAVIS, Senator from Kentucky, has concluded that the Democratic Party should be disbanded and another organized to suit his ideas of political ethics.

For some months past, it has been a matter of doubt in the minds of some men, whether Garrett Davis was a democrat or not. We have never doubted his opposition to democracy and its principle, and have been surprised that there were men in the democratic party, who could entertain any other notion of him.

In 1861, he made a speech in Louisville, in which he admitted the soundness of the democracy, but asserted that he would fight the party and its principles, because the democracy carried the state of New York, by chicanery, for James K. Polk, which elected him President of the United States over Hon. H. Clay. He hated the democracy for that act—and he would follow his bad passions, instead of his reason—he would rule the country with madness and violence, instead of pursuing the path of principle, pleasantness and peace.

How well he bent his entire existence to his mad policy of hatred, after his Louisville speech, can be learned from the humblest cottager in this or Bourbon counties—and of late men speak of him, as one who had done them much injury.

At first he was elected to the Senate by a party that could not have been elected to seats in the Legislature without the assistance of the bayonet. These peculiar friends and admirers, of his, sent him to Washington, where he remained true to his unprincipled notions, until President Lincoln crossed his path, and then with the sensitiveness of an incipient school-girl, flies into a passion, and pitches into his works in a manner that would have astonished that famous old knight, Don Quixotte. And all the war he made on that party was actuated from hatred, not from principle. The same causes that brought him into collision with the radicals, made him fight for the Democrats—nothing more nor less than hatred.

While making war on the radicals, he has made friends among men who act from principle, with the Democratic party, and they have believed him to be a sound, honest friend to the constitution and the people, and those Democratic friends have returned him to the Senate again.

Now, what ingratitude he is displaying toward true men and friends!

The other day he indited a letter, in which he says he will vote for the Democratic candidate, Mr. Helm, for Congress, but that he is anxious for the organization and success of the Third Party, and as a matter of course the destruction of the great National Democracy.

Mr. Davis is Senator from Kentucky, and will hold the position for six years. Had he went before the people for that office, he would not have received a majority of the votes cast in any precinct in the State. He represents a clique not the people, for he persecuted the people in his own county, as Saul, of Tarsus, persecuted the Christians, and the people did not and could not forgive him, and never will in this life.

And now we find him leaving the Democracy, and what for?

Because he hates the Rebel soldiers and the sympathizing element which pervades the Democratic party.

Oh! shades of Ashland, how art the mighty fallen. Here we find a man, who aspires to statesmanship, to a position in the hearts of the people; who professes a love for humanity, with professed magnanimity sufficient in his soul to drown all his evil impulses; with a reputed heart big enough to do good to all his countrymen, yielding to a little petty spirit of hatred against a class of men, whose loyalty to the constitution of our old patriot fathers, is above suspicion, men who have ever been moved to action from principle; men who have a better idea of constitutional liberty and republican institutions than Hon. Garrett Davis; men who would scorn to persecute their neighbors; men who have never deserted their people and their country, for strangers; men who have never admitted that their principles were wrong, and don't, to-day, and never will; men who joined the Democratic party and did not leave it because Garrett Davis was elected Senator; although they never admired the gentleman; men who have too much dignity, and too much pride of character, to say that they even hate a man with as little influence and as insignificant, as the Hon. Garrett Davis.

On the 11th inst., the State Convention, of the Third Party, met at Louisville. All the "old shiners" were on hand. Take them at a body, there were more "old pub-funks" among them than any class of the same kind of people we have heard of for many years. The State seems hard hearted to us, because some offices are not appropriated expressly for these old office hunters. Then, the people would not be annoyed by their importunities, and falsely so-called union resolves.

In their struggle for life, liberty and office, the following state ticket was thrown out upon the breeze—

For Governor—Aaron Harding, of Greene.

For Lieutenant Governor—Wm. B. Kinkhead, of Fayette.

For Attorney General—J. M. Harlan, of Franklin.

For Auditor—J. Smith Hurt, of Bath.

For Treasurer—Alfred Allen, of Breckinridge.

For Register of Land Office—J. J. Craddock, of Hart.

For Superintendent of Public Instruction—B. M. Harney, of Jefferson.

This is certainly a gay old party. We wonder why old man Harney—we mean of the resolution committee—didn't open the doors of his church and invite everybody and his wife to join? It would have been proper and right to have invited all good and faithful Black Republicans, Abolitionists and Radicals, to co-operate in the election of these "gallorous" candidates for place and power. No harm could have come of it. To ask assistance from friends, is proper and right, and if they fail with those of the dark-hued principles, assistance must come from some other quarter than this State, for it cannot be found here.

COUNTY COURT DAY.—We are glad to see such an increase of business in our little city on Court days. Cattle sold from 7 to 9c. Horses sold from $50 to $200. Any variety of stock can be sold or bought here on County Court day. Nicholas has as good stock and as great a variety as any county in the State. Surrounding counties are finding it much to their interest to attend the Nicholas Court.—Carlisle Mercury.

NICHOLAS MULES.—Mr. Pat Bowden of this county, bought 13 mules for $2,725—three out of that number, weighed 2,830 pounds. Mr. Bowden is becoming one of the most extensive mule traders in the county, as he is shipping mules East and South every few days.—Car. Mer.

The candidates for the Legislature in this county, are now out, and will come before the Democratic Convention as soon as one is called. John H. Lair, of Lair's Station, and M. D. Martin, of Robertson's Station, two very clever and sensible men, and well calculated to fill a place of the kind.

Mr. Lair is young, and in the vigor of his manhood, with a good mind, well balanced. He would make an excellent representative.

Mr. Martin is in the prime of his manhood, with plenty of good common sense for all purposes. He works well in any place he may be assigned for duty, and will make a good representative. Mr. Martin lives in the Northern portion of the county, and Mr. Lair in the Southern.

It is necessary that Precinct Meetings should be held, and delegates appointed who will nominate a candidate that will suit the people. Let the precinct delegates be instructed for whom to cast his votes, and see to it that he represents his constituency.

It is time that packed affairs should be closed out, and continually closed out, and the only way to succeed against the machinations and chicanery of a clique is for the people to elect delegates to all their county conventions.

The New York Dispatch gravely asserts that the sale of illegitimate babies in that city is a large and profitable business, and so publicly carried on as scarcely to be clandestine. It says that should the King of Ashantee, or any other distinguished cannibal, come to that city, and desire a fine, fat baby for a luxurious meal, he could be accommodated. These so-called nurseries are numerous, and may be found in different parts of the city, their whereabouts being for the most part advertised in the daily papers, the announcement being made in a manner that disguises, but does not conceal, their real import. These places, the largest of which is situated in Greenwell street, answers a double purpose, that of relieving those of the responsibilities of maternity, who do not wish to be so burdened, and bestowing upon those who wish such blessings the well-spring of pleasure, a babe in the house. The seeker after infantile loveliness can, upon application, be accommodated to any desired extent; babies from one day to one year old are constantly on hand or provided to order, of any type of beauty or shade of complexion, and at prices ranging from $25 to $200, warranted sound, and in a good state of preservation at the time of delivery.

A reporter, who visited one of these baby bazaars, was offered a sickly little English male infant, 18 days old, with a red flabby skin, covered with rash, for the unreasonable price of $30. A robust female child, four months old, was exhibited, but the reporter did not enquire the price. A baby boy, one month old, who was good and gave no trouble, was held at $75. A year and a half old French boy, with fair round limbs, hazel eyes and curly black hair, was held at $150. The matron in charge volunteered the information that babies just then were dull.

In General Morgan's original company was a private soldier of very great size, considerably older than the majority of his comrades and of unflinching good temper; these qualities obtained for him the sobriquet of "grand-pap." To these he added undaunted courage, perfect coolness, great kindness of heart and incorruptible integrity. Captured at Lebanon, Tennessee, in May, 1862, he remained in prison until fall, when he was exchanged and promoted. He was for months on parole upon the staff of General Breckinridge, commanding the Second Brigade, and afterwards in command of a company under Colonel Ward, in Duke's Brigade. Upon the termination of the war he returned to Woodford, married, and upon the 9th died, leaving a widow and a little infant. Our messmate and comrade, our friend in war and peace, with sincere grief, we drop a tear over the grave of Joe Sellers, in whose huge frame was a large heart, which, though as gentle and tender as a woman's, was as dauntless and heroic as a lion.—Obs. & Rep.

Mr. S. B. Ewalt's horse, "Sir Alfred," is among the best saddle stallions in Kentucky. He can be seen near Mt. Carmel, in this county, at the stable of the owner. He is a very popular animal.

Mr. Keith, the President of the Covington & Lexington Railroad, has subscribed one thousand dollars, to build a bridge over South Licking, near Berry's Station.

Mr. S. Bachman, one of the friends of the "faithful," with S. Ehrman, Paris, Ky., has received a new and splendid stock of ready-made clothing, which he will sell cheap for cash. Everybody should call and see him.

Mr. Joseph H. Shawhan, merchant tailor in this city, has just opened a new and splendid stock of gents' furnishing goods, and he says that he can sell them cheaper than can be had elsewhere.

The attention of stock breeders and stock men generally, is directed to the advertisement of Mr. J. Levi Patterson, in another column. His thoroughbred horse, "Trustee," is one of the best horses in this county, and his pedigree is unexceptionable.

The following named gentlemen were chosen city officers at the last city election. We suppose they will attend to the pavement question:

Mr. Editor

On the 28th day of February, 1867, it appears that Congress passed an act authorizing the Secretary of War to refund $300 to each person who was drafted, and commuted and thereafter, within one year, was held to service, and furnished a substitute, and now being in possession of two certificates of exemption.

I have ordered the necessary blanks to prosecute this classed claims upon for prosecuting and collecting same. My fee will be 25 per cent. upon amount collected, payable when the money is collected. Respectfully,
W. S. Haviland.

We notice that the new stone front on Main street, has opened, and is fairly under way. The proprietors have inaugurated the stone pavement enhances the appearance of the establishment 50 per cent. It was well laid down and otherwise excellently finished up in style, by our friend, J. B. Pinkerton, a man who understands his business. He can work as well or better in stone than many men can in wood, in fact, we can recommend him as a superior workmen in stone.

Hon. A. H. Ward has some fun in his composition, and it comes out on him spontaneously. The other day, while in our office, Harry was discussing the energy, spirit and determination of the poor white man to make a living; that he works better under disheartening circumstances, and pulled stronger when the yoke was heavier than when it was light. "Yes," says he, "the poor white man must work if he expects a cent; but a nigger has a scent whether he works or not."

We have two new pieces of music just from the house of John Church, Jr., Cincinnati, Ohio. One entitled a parody, "Let me Spank him for his Mother," music by Herm H. Rau. Another piece called the "Alpine Roses," a Swiss Mountain song, dedicated to Mrs. John Church, Jr.; composed by Charles Corbally. The second verse is good, and the music equally superb:

"As it is with Alpine flowers,
Tempting fate in foreign zone,
So it is with Switzer children,
Seeking fortune far from home.
Then a sad and untold longing,
Leads them back to Switzer land,
Where they find the Alpine roses.
Welcome home the roving band."

Croup.—Almost daily we are called upon to chronicle the death of some loved one, by this dread disease, which often takes its victim away from loving parents with only very short notice. Every mother should supply herself with Coe's Cough Balsam, for it is no exaggeration to say it will cure ninety-nine cases in every one hundred, if taken in season. There are very many mothers who will tell you they owe the life of some dear one to this wonderful medicine. One very desirable quality is, that it leaves no bad effect, it being perfectly harmless. In cases of cough, hoarseness or tickling in the throat, it has no equal.

The Senatorial Convention will be held in Cynthiana on the second Monday in May, (next court day.) The executive committee of the county called a meeting to appoint delegates for this convention, last February, and invited the other counties to join them in nominating a candidate for the Senate. Robertson County has responded. We hope to hear from our friends in Scott, that they have appointed delegates also. What has the editor of the "Times" to say about delegates, will Scott have representation?

Last Tuesday, one "Sam Snooks," of Berry's Station, sent us 17 opossums—one female and sixteen little ones—all brought to us in a box, per express. This is the beginning of our menagerie, and if we can succeed in capturing other wild animals, and a couple of the members of the Third Party, we shall be ready for an exhibition. When our canvass is up, our motto shall be—price 50cts. children 25cts. Walk this way ladies and gentlemen, and we will show you the wonder of the world—one of the Third Party—in gender it is neuter. Give us a little more music, Mr. fiddler.

LYONS' PERIODICAL DROPS!

The Great Female Remedy for Irregularities!!!

I HAVE tested these Drops in my own practice, over ten years, and do not hesitate to say, that nothing has yet been developed by medical research, that acts so powerfully, positively and harmlessly, in cases of female irregularity, as does this medicine. In all recent cases, it never fails, while thousands who have been long sufferers, are indebted to it for the boon of health to-day.
Although so powerful and positive, they perfectly harmless, and may be used at all times, except when specially forbidden in the directions.
They have been extensively employed by eminent physicians in France and England, as well as in my own practice, over ten years, and I have yet to hear of the first instance of failure. I could give you testimonials of their efficacy from ladies all over the Northern and North Western States, were they not in their nature, private. Over 100,000 bottles have been sold the last year, and I hope and trust as many sufferers have been benefited. I am well aware that a remedy so potent to remove all obstructions, may be used for a bad purpose, but trust that when one bottle is thus used, ten may fall into the hands of really needy sufferers.
To all who suffer from any irregularity, painful, difficult, excessive, offensive or obstructed Menstruation, Leucorrhoea, or the train of diseases that follow, I would say, try a bottle of Dr. Lyons' French Periodical Drops. Being a fluid preparation, their action is more direct and positive than any pills or powders. Explicit directions, bearing my facsimile, accompany each bottle.
They may be obtained of nearly every druggist in the country, or by enclosing this price to C. G. Clark & Co., New Haven, Ct. General agents for the United States in Canada.

Practicing Physician, New Haven, Ct.

NOTICE.

One of the best Hotel Stands in Kentucky for Sale.

OWING TO CIRCUMSTANCES well known to myself and many friends (but not from pecuniary or any financial circumstances) and being desirous of living in the country, I am induced, and now offer for sale my

HOTEL.

In Cynthiana, with all the furniture and fixtures belonging. I can convince any gentleman that it is one of the best paying hotels in the interior of Kentucky. It being located within 200 feet of the depot, it is large and commodious, and capable of accommodating over 200 persons. It is the best location in the city. It is also the breakfast stand for passengers traveling on the K. C. R. R., and during the summer will be the stage office for a line of stages running from this place to Owensville, Bath County, Ky., by way of Headquarters, Carlisle and Sharpshooter. Also all the travel and stock trade that has heretofore gone to Paris from the counties of Nicholas, Bath and Montgomery, will all be concentrated at Cynthiana, which will be a large addition to the hotels and add greatly to the welfare of the city.

There is not a more substantially built house in Kentucky, built upon 2 foot walls of the best of material 8 feet deep. There is the best of cellars under the whole house. The house is entirely new, having been built in the fall of '63 and the spring of '64. The entire house, kitchen and porches are well protected with fire-proof roofing. Upon the premises there is a never failing well, also a No. 1 cistern that holds 600 barrels of water. Also the largest ice-house in the county, filled with ice.

I will also sell 3 lots fronting on Walnut street, one fronting 52 feet running back 91 feet, with a comfortable 1 1/2 story brick house with a weatherboarded all attached, containing 5 rooms, this will make a comfortable house for a small family. Also 2 lots adjoining, fronting 28 feet on Walnut street, running back 91 feet, these two lots will make desirable business lots. I will sell the above lots separately or with the hotel, as they are attached to the hotel premises. I will also sell 7 lots on Pike street, fronting from 21 to 25 feet running back 104 feet, which I will sell altogether or divide them to suit the purchasers.

I can frankly and honestly say that I consider this stand one of the best prospects for an enterprising and industrious man to make a fortune in a few years of any hotel in the interior of Kentucky. I will say further that I will convince any gentleman that wishes to purchase that the receipts of this house for one year will more than pay the purchase money.

Any one wishing to purchase will call and examine the premises, and I will take great pleasure in showing them and giving them the terms. A general warranty deed will be given.

Blue Grass Farm FOR SALE.

THE Farm on which I now reside is for sale. It is situated four miles south of Cynthiana, half a mile from Lair's Station on the Kentucky C. R. Road, at which place there is a post office, express office, depot, saw mill and two excellent grist mills that manufacture the best quality of flour and meal. It is within three hours ride of Cincinnati and 1-2 of Lexington. It contains about 175 Acres, one hundred acres well timbered, nicely cleared up and set in blue grass. The remainder cleared and in the highest state of cultivation. The fencing all in good order. The improvements consist of a comfortable dwelling, partly frame and partly log, weatherboarded and plastered and painted, containing six rooms, cook-house and all necessary out buildings including two large stables, (with lofts for feed,) large enough to house and feed 75 mules at a time which can be done without going out doors as there is large wide feed rooms extending the whole length of the stables in which there is a cutting box run by horse power with capacity and strength enough to cut a large quantity of provender in a short time. There is also a young orchard of select fruit of various kinds now bearing. The farm is supplied with abundance of pure water for all purposes as there is upon it a number of never failing springs (some of them near the dwelling) & south Licking which runs along one side of it. Any one wishing to purchase such a farm would do well to call and examine for himself as the place will be sold for a reasonable price, the payments made easy and if desired a part of the money can be run a considerable length of time at moderate interest.

I also desire to sell 400 acres of Land which lies in Lewis county Missouri. Said land is situated about 12 miles from Pahrara on the road leading from there to Monticello and about 16 miles from the Mississippi river, about one half of it timbered land, the timber excellent, the balance prairie of good quality, a little rolling and dry, in a good neighborhood, & is surrounded by old settlers and finely improved farms. There is a large handsome brick church & school house in sight of the land. Also, a small village & post office near by. Price reasonable, payments easy & made to suit the ability & convenience of purchasers. For further particulars call on

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED.

At the wonderful revelations made by the great astrologist, Madame H. A. Perrigo. She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses in love, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the malefic star that overcomes or predominates in the configuration—from the aspects and position of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest astrologist on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair. Address, Madame H. A. Perrigo, P. O. drawer 283, Buffalo, N. Y.
